

PIER PAOLO CREANZA

pcreanza@princeton.edu — www.ppcreanza.com — This version: February 2023

EDUCATION

Princeton University, Princeton, NJ, USA

August 2020 - present

PhD in Economics

Incidental M.A. in Economics, awarded September 2022

Bocconi University, Milan, Italy

September 2017 - April 2020

M.Sc. in Economics and Social Sciences (DES-ESS)

Dissertation advisors: Maristella Botticini, Guido Alfani

Graduation mark: 110/110 summa cum Laude

Bocconi University, Milan, Italy

September 2014 - September 2017

B.Sc. in Economics and Social Sciences (CLES)

Dissertation advisor: Francesco Giavazzi

Graduation mark: 110/110 summa cum Laude

PUBLICATIONS

Institutions, trade and growth: the ancient Greek case of proxenia

— Forthcoming on the Journal of Economic History

Recent scholarship contends that ancient Mediterranean economies grew intensively. An explanation is Smithian growth spurred by reductions in transaction costs and increased trade flows. This paper argues that an ancient Greek institution, proxenia, was among the innovations that allowed such growth in the period 500-0 BCE. Proxenia entailed a Greek city-state declaring a foreigner to be its ‘public friend’, a status that conferred both duties and privileges. The functions performed by ‘public friends’ could facilitate economic transactions between communities. Accordingly, network and regression analyses establish a strong relation between proxenia grants and trade intensity.

WORKING PAPERS

‘Returning brains’: tax incentives, migration and scientific productivity

This paper investigates whether common tax schemes aimed at inducing high-skill immigration produce positive productivity spillovers on native workers. While recent contributions have provided evidence that such policies induce the expected migration effects, little is known about broader benefits in terms of innovation or economic performance. To shed light on this question, this paper focuses on an Italian tax break targeting researchers and uses publication data to measure productivity. First, the data show a strong first-stage in terms of migration and positive selection of beneficiaries. Second, preliminary evidence shows positive productivity spillovers. Interestingly, these effects are dependent on the relative productivity of new hires and treated natives: spillovers happen when natives have room to learn (namely, have productivity below the new hire’s).

WORK IN PROGRESS

The Red Scare and racial inequality — with Leah Boustan, Ilyana Kuziemko and Suresh Naidu

Historical geography of innovation

SEMINAR AND CONFERENCE PRESENTATIONS

Society for Institutional and Organizational Economics (SIOE)	June 2021
Graduate Seminar in Economic History (LSE)	October 2021
Graduate Seminar in Economic and Social History (Oxford)	October 2021
Economic History Association (EHA)	October 2021
Graduate Labor Workshop (Princeton)	September 2022
Program in Public Economics (Princeton)	November 2022

REFEREE SERVICE

Journal of Public Economics, Journal of Economic History

TEACHING

2022: Junior Independent Work (ECO981)

RESEARCH ASSISTANCE

2021-2022: Leah Boustan (Princeton) & Ilyana Kuziemko (Princeton)
2019: Paola Giuliano (UCLA) & Marco Tabellini (HBS)
2019: Marco Tabellini (HBS) & Vasiliki Fouka (Stanford)
2019: Guido Alfani (Bocconi)

OTHER ACADEMIC ACTIVITIES

IGIER (Bocconi) , Visiting student	February 2018 - April 2020
PSE , Graduate summer school (Advanced Macroeconomics; Behavioral Economics)	June 2018
LSE , Summer school (Introduction to Data Science and Big Data Analytics)	August 2018
Princeton , Reading group in Economic History	September 2021 - present
Economic History Association 82nd annual meeting, Conference participation	September 2022

SCHOLARSHIPS AND AWARDS

University Fellowship in Humanities and Social Sciences, awarded by Princeton University on admission to the PhD for the entire duration of the program.

Graduate Merit Award for outstanding academic performance, awarded by Bocconi University in 2017.

John Pencavel Prize, awarded by UCL's Department of Economics for the best academic performance among affiliates in the 2016/2017 academic year.